Resurrection College Prep High School

Winter - Spring 2010

A Message from President Dr. Lynne Saccaro

Dear Friends of Resurrection,

We have survived another Chicago winter and we welcome the arrival of spring and the celebration of the Easter season. Thank you to everyone who attended our annual dinner auction, Res-Ma-Tazz, on Saturday, February 27, 2010. The event is our largest fundraiser each year and over $70,000 was raised for tuition assistance. We had a fabulous showing of support from our community and over 370 guests enjoyed an evening of cocktails, dinner, silent and live auctions.

At the event, we honored Emmy award winning producer and sportscaster Peggy Kusinski '81 with the Renaissance Award, which is Resurrection College Prep High School's highest honor. The award is given to individuals who have exemplified the Renaissance spirit by embracing new ideas, independent thought, and classical values as well as excellence in their fields of endeavor. As a Resurrection alumna, Peggy is an outstanding example of the power and energy of a Resurrection woman.

We also honored John and Stella Olender with the Charity and Truth Award for their on-going dedication and service to Resurrection. Mr. and Mrs. Olender sponsor an annual scholarship at Res in memory of their daughter, Christine Olender '80, who was a victim in the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001. The Olender's on-going generosity and heartfelt support of Catholic education in memory of their daughter is inspiring to us all.

Our Annual Appeal is underway and I ask each of you to be inspired by the commitment of John and Stella Olender and so many of our generous donors, as you consider your ability to support Resurrection. The current tuition at Resurrection covers 78% of a Resurrection student's education. The remaining 22% is funded through the generosity of alumnae, parents, grandparents and friends of Resurrection. Every donor and every dollar makes a difference, especially during these economically challenging times.

Thank you for your support and belief in the work of Resurrection College Prep High School. May you and those you hold close to your heart be filled with the transforming glory of the Resurrection!

In Charity and Truth,

Dr. Lynne Saccaro
President/Principal

School Focus: Science Department “Physics-First” Curriculum

Jobs in health care, engineering, computer science, telecommunications and environmental science all rely on a strong foundation in the sciences. At Resurrection, students are provided a solid basis for college with a dynamic science faculty and an innovative curriculum.

Science Department Chair Dawn Konow with students in a Biology lab.

The cover photo of this issue of the Resonance shows freshman Alison Mc Andrews conducting a lab experiment on the speed of sound in Science teacher and Science Club Moderator Amy Becker’s conceptual physics class. This is a typical experience at Resurrection, where 100% of students study physics, in contrast with only 30% of high school students nationally.

The traditional high school science curriculum was biology first, chemistry second, physics third. Resurrection has adopted a reverse sequence – a curriculum known as “physics-first”. At Resurrection, freshmen study physics or physical science, followed by chemistry, then biology. According to the American Association of Physics Teachers, a “physics-first” curriculum builds a stronger foundation and understanding of science.

Contrasted with a higher-level, calculus-based physics course, conceptual physics emphasizes a conceptual understanding of the course material, basic problem solving, hands-on laboratory experiences, and the ability to apply the principles of physics to everyday experiences in our world. In conceptual physics, students study the basic laws of nature governing the physical world including motion, Newton’s Laws, energy, gravity, properties of matter, wave phenomena, the nature of sound and light, electricity and magnetism, and modern physics, including atomic theory and relativity theory.

“Physics-first is a great program,” says Science teacher Kathryn Battista, “it gives a good foundation for the other sciences, while allowing a more in-depth understanding of the sciences to come in later years.”

The Resurrection science curriculum encourages students to take additional science courses, beyond the three required years of science. In addition to the core curriculum, Res students have the opportunity to take Advanced Placement (AP) chemistry, AP biology or AP physics, anatomy and physiology, environmental science, forensic science, botany, zoology and science seminar.

According to Resurrection Science Department Chair Dawn Konow, the physics-first program allows students to broaden their understanding of all science concepts. “I can really see the connections for our students,” says Ms. Konow. “We are doing the right progression and we see the natural flow.”

The Science Department at Resurrection has seven faculty members with over fifty years of combined teaching experience. Res alumnae may have studied chemistry with Achamma Koshy. Ms. Koshy holds a M.A. in Chemistry, teaches chemistry and physical science classes, and has been teaching at Resurrection for 26 years.

Department Chair Dawn Konow is a member of Who’s Who Among American’s Teachers and is a Golden Apple Award recipient. Commenting on the science department faculty, she says “It is a pleasure working with a science faculty who like to collaborate and have a sense of discovery and have enthusiasm and love for their field of study. Our teachers really feed off each other.”

Science teachers Joe Miller and Kelly Devine are moderators of the Worldwide Youth in Science and Engineering (WYSE) Club at Resurrection. Each year the club members participate in the annual WYSE Competition, an academic challenge. Students compete as individuals and as part of a team. Resurrection students often advance to the sectional meet at the WYSE competition, and that success bolsters student confidence in the sciences. “We encourage students to consider science, math, and engineering as careers,” says Mr. Miller.

Additions to the science curriculum include new classes that will be offered in the upcoming school year, including zoology, botany and forensic science. These classes “will certainly give our students an advantage in pursuing college science classes,” says Ms. Devine. In the forensic science course students will work cooperatively with the tools and techniques of this evolving field of study and learn to interpret forensic evidence including finger-printing, DNA analysis, ballistics, and chemical analysis. “Some of the equipment and techniques that they will learn to use in this class, such as gel electrophoresis and spectroscopy, will put our girls heads above their peers,” said Ms. Devine.

Jessica Wojcik, a Res alumna from the Class of 2002, began her teaching career at Resurrection during the current school year. She holds an M.S. in Biology from Loyola University and a M.Ed. from DePaul University. “I really enjoy teaching girls and putting them first, as well as making them comfortable in their own skin so they can explore and take risks in science.”

According to data from the National Coalition of Girls’ Schools, graduates of girls’ schools tend to pursue careers in math, science and technology four times more often than girls from co-ed schools.

Kathryn Evanoff '09 participated in the 2008-09 Science Fair. Resurrection students have placed Top in Category in the IJAS State Science Fair for over 15 years.

The focus on how girls learn puts Res students at an advantage in the science lab. Ms. Devine, who is also the moderator for the National Honor Society (NHS) says Resurrection students “are strong, decisive and ambitious both in and out of the classroom, but it doesn’t preclude them from being kind, generous, and compassionate. They know how to work hard and play hard – a tough balance for any teenager to achieve.”

Career Day

Annette Alonzo Kulle '57 - Leader & Educator

Resurrection alumna Annette Alonzo Kulle '57 and her husband Frank have been the guiding spirits at Countryside Montessori School since they opened their first classroom in Glenview 43 years ago. At the conclusion of the school year Annette and Frank will retire, so each event they host at the school this year will feel like a conclusion, a “one more time” event, a final celebration before they retire.

The Kules knew very little about Maria Montessori’s philosophy or educational method when they opened their first classroom. Frank had just been discharged from the Army and was working as an engineer; Annette was at home with three young children. When their eldest daughter was ready for pre-school, every school Annette called had a waiting list. Annette and Frank decided to fill a need in the community and start a school.

The Kules founded Countryside in 1967 as a single classroom in Glenview United Methodist Church. After filling satellite classes in Skokie (1969) and Northbrook (1970), the Kules purchased a piece of property. In 1971, they moved the school to a house on Pfingston Road in Northbrook where the school continues to this day. That simple house has since been renovated and greatly expanded, but it has remained the school’s home.

Today, Countryside is a not-for-profit Montessori school with an enrollment of about 150 students. The school accepts students as young as 16 months into the toddler program. Children graduate from Countryside at the age of 12. Countryside is one of only two schools in Illinois to earn and maintain the highest, international accreditation for Montessori schools, granted by the Association Montessori Internationale (AMI). When Countryside students enter the school through carpool each morning, the words printed above the vestibule door remind them of their school’s mission: “respect, responsibility, resourcefulness.” Most Countryside students can read the words independently by their kindergarten year.

Annette believes she did not seek a career in education; her profession chose her. “As Head of School, I have had so many different hats to wear,” she said. “Resurrection gave me so many opportunities for leadership. I have used them all over the years.” Annette credits Sister Mary Jerome for her life-long love of literature and writing. She remembers entering many writing contests for poetry, safety slogans, limericks and essays. She now composes a weekly newsletter for Countryside families and alumnae, and thinks of Sister Mary Jerome every time she sits down at her computer to write.

Sister Mary Grace gave Annette a love of music that has endured. Children at Countryside perform throughout the year, and look forward to an annual children’s opera. Many Countryside students study piano with the school’s resident instructor and all elementary students participate in the school’s chorus. Annette recalls that Sister Mary Grace was “small but mighty.” Annette said, “I still remember her playing one note on the piano and challenging us to name that tune!”

When the Kules retire at the end of the year, their multiple responsibilities and ongoing projects will be distributed among the administrative staff they have been training for many years. Current Director of Education Wendy Calise will assume the position of Head of School. She is the Kulle’s youngest daughter.

Like her older brother and sister, Calise attended Countryside as a child. She has three children enrolled in the school, the oldest of whom will graduate this year. After graduating from Northwestern University and completing AMI primary training, Calise began teaching at Countryside in 1990. Calise completed elementary training and began teaching in an elementary class in 1998. Soon thereafter, she began her work as Director of Education.

The Kules will remain in Northbrook. They enjoy traveling and have “dabbled” in local and national politics. They hope to volunteer, and to spend time in the company of their seven grandchildren. Annette and Frank will continue to share the stories they have collected through four decades of innovative work in education.
